ANN.: This veteran has a far different problem... He writes: - - "I'm eligible for three years of training under the GI Bill... I'd like to know if I can use nine months of that time to finish up my high school work... and the remaining 27 months for an on-the-job training course."

V.A.R.: Yes, a veteran can split up his GI Bill credit that way, if that's the way his training will best lead towards a job. After finishing his high school work... he will need a supplemental certificate of eligibility to get started in the job-training course. The place to apply for it, of course, is his local VA office.

ANN.: And here's one from a Navy veteran... "I got out of the Navy in 1946," he writes... "Since then I've been working full time. I'd like to go to college next spring and want to know if that can be done...?"

V.A.R.: Yes, if this veteran is eligible for GI Bill education he has time. Since he was discharged back in 1946, he has until July 25, 1951 to start his education under the GI Bill. However, it's a good idea for him to make quite sure that he can get into the college he wants to attend. Most of the colleges are still pretty full.

15 MINUTE RADIO SCRIPT NO. 50-39

V.A.R.: He can apply again for compensation, at any time.
A new examination will be made by VA, and a new rating may be given based on his present condition.

ANN.: If a disability rating can be increased, it can be decreased too...

V.A.R.: That's right, _____. In some cases periodic check-ups are required.

ANN.: How about this, _____? The veteran feels the rating given him doesn't do him justice. Can he do anything about it...?

V.A.R.: Certainly.! He may, at any time, present additional evidence on his case. If the evidence warrants, the VA will reopen his case. Besides, when a veteran feels that the rating is not just... he can also appeal his case... The appeal, however, must be made within 1-year of the date of rating.

ANN.: The appeal goes to a 'higher court'...

V.A.R.: Yes... The 'court' so to speak, is the Board of Veterans Appeals. It reviews the decisions of Rating Boards. If it finds the decision of the original Rating Board is not exactly according to law or the evidence on the record, it may change the rating.

W H R C
HAVERFORD COLLEGE
HAVERFORD, PENNA.

Dear Haverfordian,

No doubt you will receive in the next few weeks other letters regarding Haverford College and its activities. At this time it is my happy duty to tell you a little about WHRC, the college radio station.

WHRC, unlike many other college radio stations is completely run by the students. Every department is headed and staffed by students. As a matter of fact the faculty only visit the station when they are invited.

This year, as every year, we wish to get as many freshmen on the station staff as possible, so that each class, including the freshmen can be well represented.

WHRC is one of the major facilities at college for information and entertainment of the students. It provides music for every taste - classical, popular and jazz. The latest additions to our news department this year are two new teletypes, one from the New York Times and the other from the Associated Press. WHRC also broadcasts all of the schools major athletic events.

We have openings in all of our departments for new students. First of all we need men with good speaking voices to announce, act, take part in discussion programs and act as disc-jockies.

We have a much greater need for engineers. I, myself, get a greater kick engineering a show than participating in it. You need not know any radio theory to be an engineer because the dials and switches that you operate have much the same function as those on your own home radio or phonograph. The fact that you've had no experience as an engineer should not concern you, for most of our engineers have had no previous experience. You will be taught by other students who have had professional experience.

For those of you who have a working knowledge of radio theory and are interested in either audio or transmitter work there are openings in the technical staff with the opportunity of designing, building and remodeling equipment for the station.

Perhaps you are interested in the idea of working in a radio station but you are not sure just where you would fit in or what jobs would appeal to you. May I suggest that there are certain jobs at the station that require no special skill, but which will give you a good opportunity to observe the various departments and decide what you would like to do. These jobs are in the record library, in the public relations department, and in the sales department, all of which are in themselves very interesting jobs.

I hope that the little bit I have told you about WHRC has interested you, and I hope that you will come out and enjoy yourself working for the station in the fall. If you have any questions, let me hear from you and I will do my best to answer them.

See you in September.

Sincerely,

Alex Goldfinger, Jr.
Alex Goldfinger, Jr.
Public Relations Director.

XXX

We bring you now a special word of caution from the Veterans Administration. Are you a veteran who's taking farm training under the GI Bill? Then you must report last year's earnings. You must report those 1951 earnings to your VA Regional Office. You must do it by March First. Otherwise, your subsistence checks may be suspended by the VA.
